 *Remarks:
 Entire tower from 1937 was replaced in the 1953 enlargement; this was significantly remodelled in 1983.
 Original installation contained 18 bells apparently by P. Hemony, 1674; 16 (later 12) apparently by J. du Mery, 1737; one apparently by A. van den Gheyn, 1784; reportedly all collected (and some returned) by O. Michaux, Louvain, Belgium; thus this was thought to be the only pre-19th century carillon in North America. However, investigations c.2003 confirmed old suspicions that the "Hemony" bells (at least) were forgeries made by Michaux (or Michiels) using plaster casts of bells which existed elsewhere. One original bell (broken) was replaced in the 1953 enlargement, and the two smallest originals ("DuMery") were replaced in the 1977 enlargement.
 Meeks, Watson & Co. replaced top 20 in 2006; dedicated 10 June.

 *Remarks:
 For disposition of 18 Taylor trebles removed in 1966, see
 DAYTON - BW, USA - OH
 in 'Chimes' section.
 Tower was razed in 2006, and rebuilt exactly as the original, but with only automatic play of the entire expanded range; partial provision was made for future addition of manual action if funds can be found to add an elevator, lavatory and other items apparently needed to comply with local codes for human use; but new 4th octave has no internal clappers to support that.
 Disposition of 18 P&F trebles and the manual keyboard removed in 2004-5 is unknown.
 Original practice keyboard by Taylor, formerly in Graves Hall, is now with Suzanne Magassy in Australia.

 *Remarks:
 Chime of 1854 was largely replaced in 1911, retaining only bell #5; the expansion added flat 7th, sharp 4th and a treble, and replaced a taut-rope rack with a chimestand. Two trebles added in 1939, presumably with a larger chimestand. Treble & flat sixth added in 1976, with unknown mechanism.

Old chimestand removed in 1983, with tower space converted to organ loft. Bourdon of 1911 retained and returned for carillon; there is space in the belfry for a future manual console (though access through organ is awkward).

 *Remarks:
 45 bells cast by E. & A. Bollée (or Bollée et Fils, Le Mans) in 1866, and exhibited at Exposition Universelle in Paris in 1867. 44 bells delivered.
 Although the range was 4 octaves, the lowest 2 octaves had many missing semitones. Structural problems with this tower caused most bells to be removed to storage. Installed in the "New" cathedral after it was built in 1912. In 1915, 43 bells were in the tower, 20 connected to keyboard in 2 2/3 diatonic octaves, C to A; were played before late mass on Sundays and Feastdays. Structural problems here caused removal to storage in 1927.
 Was reported as 42 bells for years, but most bells were stolen over time.
 "New" cathedral demolished c.1977;
 2 bells remain in "Old" cathedral;
 8 are now at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

"Site ID" is the same as used in the MIL pages which precede this subsection and in the CIL pages which follow, except that here they are shown in mixed case for readability.
 on blank lines marks the placement and number of great bells in this area which are not contained in carillons. They are listed at the end of the MIL for the chime section for this area.
Bell numbers shown are relative to each instrument's own bourdon, which is designated as #1, except "Sub" for sub-bass (i.e., separated from the next largest bell by more than a whole tone).
Bells are listed in descending order by weight; bells of the same weight are listed in alphabetic order by site id.

The mark "~" denotes weights which are known to be estimated. Other weights may also be estimates (especially those which are round numbers).

* marks bells which also swing.
