HOW TO REACH THE GUILD
To contact the Guild of Carillonneurs in North America, email: info@gcna.org

Guild Web Page:
www.gcna.org
What an honor and privilege to be writing this column as GCNA President! As I review the history of The Guild of Carillonneurs in North America and reflect upon the names of past presidents (https://www.gcna.org/guild-history), I am humbled. Thank you for the opportunity.

Many thanks to my predecessor, Roy Lee, for his service to the organization. Roy’s steady hand has led us through some bewildering times. Who could have imagined that a virtual Congress was even possible? A webinar series? Zoom social hours? Things may feel a little different, but the GCNA community is strong and vibrant.

While I (like many of you) missed meeting in person this summer, I was invigorated by the program offered by the virtual 78th Congress. A huge round of applause to our host, Ellen Dickinson, Trinity College, and the team of people that made this Congress a reality. What a technological masterpiece. Watching all these sessions from my living room? Priceless!

Did you know that Trinity College holds a unique spot in GCNA history? In September 1934, Remsen B. Ogilby, the President (and Carillonneur) of Trinity College, Hartford, Connecticut, invited all carillonneurs from the US and Canada, as well as others interested in the instrument, to attend a meeting at Trinity College to discuss common interests. Some thirty-five people were in attendance and resolutions were drawn up for a subsequent meeting. This Hartford gathering became known as the First Congress of Carillonneurs in North America. In September 1936, the Second Congress of Carillonneurs was called at the Houses of Parliament in Ottawa, Canada. At this meeting, the GCNA was established.

Our rich history is documented on the GCNA history webpage. If you haven’t been to www.gcna.org lately, I encourage you to do so. Browse the pages – there are recent additions and some very useful information!

Last week I received the following text: “I think I may have just broken one of the batons.”

Raise your hand if you have had a similar experience? I’m reminded of all those little things that can go wrong: lights are out in the tower and it is dark in the stairwell, the hatch to the bell chamber is stuck, someone (probably me) forgot to turn the clock strike back on, etc. Oh, how the list can go on.

Yes, it is a fact: mechanical things break and need to be fixed. I remind myself that challenges may open the door to opportunity and, sometimes, even innovation. That text that lit up my phone? Yes, one baton (or bell in this instance) was out of commission. Fortunately for us here at the University of Florida, we have 60 other bells that do work! That’s a good ratio. Yes, we experienced challenges during the pandemic, but perhaps some of the innovations that were developed may take us to a new level?

Thanks to vision and great execution, the GCNA has produced innovative solutions to keep our carillon community engaged during the past 18 months. Where do we go from here? Join me as OUR organization moves boldly into the future.

CALENDAR

June 15-19, 2022 | 80th GCNA Congress, University of Chicago | Chicago, Illinois, 2022
This year, the Portuguese city of Mafra held its first international carillon festival. It had originally been scheduled for February 2020, celebrating the completion of a 20-year renovation of the carillon in the tower of the Portuguese National Palace and Convent, but was cancelled in light of the escalating COVID-19 pandemic.

The meantone tuned carillon was cast in 1730 by the Antwerp founder Willem Witlockx and was one of two bought by King John V of Portugal for the twin towers of the Mafra palace. This instrument, with 44 bells and a bourdon of 9.6 tons (sounding a low F), was the world’s heaviest upon its completion. The carillon in the second tower, cast by Nicolas Levache in Liège, contains 46 bells and was the world’s largest at the time of its installation.

The Witlockx instrument’s clavier began with a low G pedal, similar to the Hemony carillon of Ghent, but contained a fully chromatic set of bells, except for the lowest A-flat. In this respect, it could be considered a forerunner of the modern grand carillon. When Eijsbouts renovated the instrument, it was equipped with a World Standard keyboard with the bourdon connected to a G pedal. However, the highest B-flat, B, and C pedals had to be omitted; otherwise the clavier would have been so long it would have blocked the opening providing access to the playing cabin. The action of the instrument is very heavy.

The festival consisted of concerts, which took place on seven Sundays in July and August at 4 p.m. Anna Maria Reverté of Barcelona, Spain, played the opening concert on July 11 and was followed by Monika Kazmierczak from Danzig, Poland, on July 18. Eddy Marien from Mechelen, Belgium, played the third concert on July 25.

I offered a program of German folk songs and music by Bach, Barber, Felciano, Gershwin, Grieg, Johnson and Satie on August 1. Ana Elias from Portugal performed on the following Sunday and Frank Steijns from Maastricht, the Netherlands, performed on August 22. Gideon Bodden from Amsterdam, the Netherlands gave the closing concert on August 29.

The audience sat in the palace courtyard and were able to view the carillonneurs playing on a large screen. After the concert, each carillonneur gave a filmed interview which contained information about their life and work. The carillonneurs were well taken care of by Abel Chaves, the resident carillonneur of Mafra and his wife, Zuelma.

The 23rd annual Danzig Carillon Festival took place from July 23 to August 29, 2021. Concerts were given every Friday evening at 8:30 p.m. on the carillon of Saint Catherine’s Church and every Saturday at 12:05 p.m. on the instrument in the tower of the town hall. Both carillons were cast by Eijsbouts.

The former is in concert pitch and has 50 bells, tuned in equal temperament, attached to a World Standard keyboard. 37 were cast in 1987 and 13 were added in 1998. The town hall carillon has 37 meantone-tuned bells cast in 1999, with a northern European standard clavier.

The festival’s 13 concerts offered a wide variety of music. The Friday evening concerts always ended with a piece for carillon and recorded music played while a fountain in front of the audience shot varying bursts of water into the air. The opening concerts took place on Friday and Saturday, July 23 and 24.

The resident carillonneur, Monika Kazmierczak, performed music accompanied by two historical trumpet players and a drummer. Gideon Bodden played romantic compositions and American music on Friday, July 30, and Bach’s Goldberg Variations on Saturday, July 31. Anna Kasprzycka, from Danzig, Poland, offered a program entitled The Danzig Nocturne on Friday, August 6, together with a recorder player. On Saturday, August 7, she performed Protestant music and ostinati.

The following weekend, Toru Takao and Katarzyna Takao-Plastowska, a carillonneur couple from Emmerich, Germany, gave three concerts. On Friday, August 13, they played a concert of four-hands pieces centered around the theme of nature. Toru performed music by Bach on Saturday, August 13, and Katarzyna gave a special concert dedicated to Saint Mary on the town hall carillon on Sunday, August 15, at 1 p.m.

I played three concerts: the first two on the carillon of Saint Catherine’s Church on Friday, August 20. At 11 a.m. I performed music by Allard, Chopin, Debussy, Schubert and Van den Gheyn. The evening concert featured modern carillon music written for the carillon in the Berlin-Tiergarten by Felciano, Skilbeck, and Tosin, as well as three short pieces for carillon and electronic music by Verandi. The concluding piece for the fountain show was by Baczewski.

On Saturday, August 21, I played music by Bach, Handel, and Mozart on the town hall carillon. The festival ended with two concerts given by Paul Maassen from Breda, the Netherlands. The concert on Friday, August 27, featured new music for carillon and strings accompanied by the NeoQuartet of Danzig. On Saturday, August 28, he played a program entitled Impressionistic Sounds on the town hall carillon.

A carillon festival was staged to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the dedication of the carillon in the Saint Peter and Paul Cathedral in the fortress of Saint Petersburg, Russia. This Petit & Fritsen carillon of 52 bells was installed in 2001, at the initiative of Jo Haazen, to replace a carillon cast by Johann Derck in Hoorn, the Netherlands, which in turn replaced a carillon ordered by Peter the Great from Jan Albert de Grave in 1720 that was destroyed in 1756.

The carillonneurs Alexandra Kapinos and Olesya Rostovskaya started the festival by firing a shot from a cannon, traditionally fired daily at noon. Olesya then read a letter from Jo Haazen, director of the carillon department of the Institute for Keyboard Instruments at the University of Saint Petersburg. The pandemic prevented him from attending in person. This was followed by a series of seven concerts played at every hour starting at 1 p.m.

The first two were performed by Irina Kozlova, the second two by Olesya Rostovskaya, the fifth by Alexandra Kapinos, and the sixth by Maria Lebedeva-Lobetskaya. All four have been awarded diplomas in carillon performance from the University of Saint Petersburg. The concerts featured a mixture of popular melodies, classical pieces, and works written for carillon, including some of the carillon music imitating traditional Russian bellringing.

The festival closed with a gala concert at 7 p.m. The program included a number of Russian peals played on the bells of the zvon which also hangs in the tower. The concert concluded with a festive Russian peal played by the Ivanov ensemble of Russian bellringers.

The performers were greeted with enthusiastic applause given by an appreciative audience.

Carillon Concerts in the Berlin-Tiergarten in 2021

_by Jeffrey Bossin_

Carillon concerts in the Berlin-Tiergarten were the only public events in Berlin that were not affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, as the city of Berlin put no restrictions on public usage of outdoor park spaces. Despite the pandemic, Berlin’s carillon enthusiasts were able to enjoy numerous concerts throughout the year.

On August 22, Roy Kroezen from Centralia, Illinois, performed works by Blackwood, Debussy, and Gershwin. Jasper Depraetere from Lier, Belgium, offered a program with music by Gounod, Piazolla, and Rush on September 5.

Toru Takao from Emmerich, Germany, gave a special concert to mark the 160th anniversary of German-Japanese friendship on September 19. This event was part of an official program promoted by the German and Japanese governments that featured a wide range of concerts and events in the two countries. He played music by Miyagi Michio, Taki Rentaro, and Kenyo Yatsuhashi, as well as pieces specially composed for the occasion by Naoto Omasa and himself. I opened the concert by playing pieces by Bach, Handel, and Schumann.

On September 21, the carillon’s automated playing mechanism was programmed to play an arrangement of Beethoven’s “Ode to Joy” from his ninth symphony as part of the Europa Nostra initiative Ringing the Bells for Peace & Heritage. This multi-country event marked the UN International Day of Peace, as well as the launch of the 2021 European Cultural Heritage Summit in Venice, Italy. At noon that day, all of the bells of the city, as well as bells all across Europe, were rung simultaneously and the event entitled Ringing the Bells for Peace & Heritage was livestreamed via live.europanostra.org.

The Carillonneur exam committee is pleased to announce that the following individuals’ pre-recorded virtual exam recitals were approved by the membership via online voting in May 2021.

We all join in congratulating the newest Carillonneur members and look forward to seeing them in person at future Congresses!

DEBORAH HENNIG has a background as a classical pianist and a degree in piano performance. She has had extensive musical training in Canada and Europe and is an experienced performer, which has been influential in her carillon playing. Deborah’s musical background led to a long career in arts management and marketing. She consulted in capacity building and communications for a variety of arts organizations across Canada and in Hong Kong where she lived and worked for five years.

Deborah discovered the carillon in 2012 and was instantly intrigued by the instrument’s unique musical and technical possibilities. She began studying with Dr. Andrea McCrady at the Peace Tower Carillon in Ottawa, Canada, but her studies were interrupted soon after when Deborah moved to Hong Kong. In 2019, she relocated to Belgium so that she could resume her carillon studies. She studied with Eddy Mariën at the Royal Carillon School in Mechelen and will graduate in 2021. Deborah has enjoyed visiting different carillons in Belgium and looks forward to exploring more instruments in the coming months.

CLAIRE JANEZIC has been playing carillon for 4 years, studying at the University of Rochester under Doris Aman. They have also been lucky enough to receive instruction from carillonneurs Lisa Lonie and Tim Sleep. Claire’s other musical pursuits include gamelan, composition for picture and video games, sound editing, and piano/keyboards. Claire is an undergraduate music and history double-major and is pursuing a minor in audio music engineering. Their historical interests are centered in the 20th century United States and Mexico, especially in regards to immigration and Pennsylvanian anthracite coal mining culture. Extracurricularly, Claire served as Music Director of campus popular music group No Jackets Required (NJR) and Music Director of community theater group Dream Visualize Create (DVC) in 2018. In their free time, Claire enjoys indoor rock climbing and taking care of a growing collection of plants.

MARIA KRunic recently graduated with a bachelor's in linguistics along with minors in biology, chemistry, and Russian/East European Studies from the University of Chicago. Both of her parents immigrated to America from Serbia and settled down in Chicago, where she was raised. Maria began her carillon studies four years ago with Joey Brink, during which she was also president of UChicago’s Guild of Carillonneurs. Maria is very excited to be a part of the GCNA and to continue engaging with the carillon world after graduating college. Aside from her musical endeavors, she likes to play tennis and enjoys swing dancing to her favorite jazz oldies.

JOSEPH MIN studied with Joey Brink at the University of Chicago.

JOSHUA VILLANUEVA is pursuing a Master of Arts in International Studies at the University of Denver. He began his musical training at the Colburn School in Los Angeles, California, and graduated from McGill University with degrees in piano performance, classical studies, and a minor in early music. He started studying the carillon with Carol Jickling Lens in late 2019. During his undergraduate studies, Joshua supported research at the Orpheus Institute in Ghent, Belgium. He also led "American Music in WWI," a research project for the U.S. World War One Centennial Commission. Joshua has composed for the Orquesta Filarmónica de Boca del Río, Orquestando Armonía in Veracruz, Mexico and the Lamont Symphony Orchestra. In recognition of his achievements, Joshua has received awards and scholarships from the Young Musician’s Foundation, Spotlight Academy of the Music Center, Scottish Rite Supreme Council, Los Angeles City Council, and the United States Congress.
Hyo Jin Jenna Moon is our newest AC member.

The Associate Carillonneur Exam Committee is pleased to announce that Hyo Jin Jenna Moon has passed the Associate Carillonneur Exam and is now an AC member of the GCNA. Jenna earned a DMA in Sacred Music at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, where she studied organ with Dr. James Kibbie, carillon with Dr. Tiffany Ng, and sacred music with Dr. Kola Owolabi. Moon received her master’s degree from the University of Michigan with the Michele Johns Scholarship, and her bachelor’s degree in organ and music education from Trinity Christian College.

Moon has performed over 100 weekday carillon recitals at the two UM campus carillons. An avid carillon ambassador of diversity, she programmed her dissertation carillon recital with a dynamic and inclusive repertoire, featuring a wide-ranging collection to celebrate and acknowledge music by people of color and women composers. She was Vice President of the University of Michigan Carillon Guild and carillon catalog assistant. She serves as the University of Michigan summer carillon concert series manager and social media advocate.

She is the author of University of Michigan Korean-English language carillon FAQ: https://wp.me/p7VjVq-bj. She published her carillon works, “Sae-Ta-Ryung (Birdsong)” and “Parang-Sae (Bluebird)” in Global Rings, CHI Press in 2020. She organized carillon concerts and a student carillon concert series, including “New Perspective & Inclusivity on Digital Carillon Concert,” collaborating with the Multi-Ethnic Student Affairs (Excellence in Entrepreneurship, Career Empowerment & Leadership Enterprise Fund) and a new augmented reality carillon performance with architecture students on a Sonic Scenographies Research grant.

To mark the UN’s annual day of nonviolence and ceasefire as part of the UN International Day of Peace (World Peace Day) in Venice, Italy, the Europa Nostra organization held its fourth annual “Ringing the Bells for Peace and Heritage” event. The event served as the opening ceremony of the 2021 European Cultural Heritage Summit.

On Tuesday, September 21, all of the bells in Venice were rung at noon. Europa Nostra called upon bell towers throughout Europe to join this initiative and ring their bells at the same time as well. The automatic mechanism of the carillon in the Berlin-Tiergarten played the melody of “Ode to Joy,” the hymn of the European Union.

The event was livestreamed from the campanile on Saint Mark’s Square as well as from other historical sites in Venice and throughout Europe. More information can be found at https://www.europanostra.org/european-heritage-summit and https://www.europanostra.org.

Sacred Music Studies and the Carillon at the University of Michigan
by Tiffany Ng

This article is a continuation of “Master’s Degree Program at the University of Michigan” in Carillon News, no. 97 (April 2017)

My previous article described carillon degree study at the University of Michigan, but I’ve since fielded questions about other carillon concentration options and what everyday studies are like. For example, the Doctor of Musical Arts in Performance: Sacred Music degree at U-M requires three dissertation recitals, two on organ and one that may be elected as a carillon recital. In August, Dr. Hyo Jin Jenna Moon earned her DMA in Sacred Music with dissertation recitals that included a hybrid-virtual recital on the Lurie Carillon in line with pandemic safety measures. She continues to perform weekly on the Baird and Lurie Carillons at U-M, and is available for guest recitals at other towers through the end of June 2022 or longer, pending residency status.

Current Sacred Music DMA students Kai Wai (Zoe) Lei and Christine El-Hage are pursuing similar tracks and performing regularly. Besides the dissertation recital concentration, U-M offers undergraduate and graduate carillon instruction for credit and a Master of Music in Carillon Performance. During the pandemic, hybrid-format carillon study included virtual guest workshops with Rachel Perfecto on arranging and Dr. Andrea McCrady on career paths. These workshops were so engaging that I’m now making Zoom visits a regular part of the program.

Our carillon studio of over 20 students forms a dynamic community, and I’ve learned much from students’ wonderfully varied and original projects. I wish I could list them all, but Dr. Moon’s record at least provides a lively example and glimpse into the many sources of support for student-led initiatives. She served as Vice President of the U-M Carillon Guild, as Associate Director and Publicist of the Summer Series, and worked on cataloguing and digitization of the carillon collections. She performed over 100 weekday recitals, and published her compositions “Sae-Ta-Ryung (Birdsong)” and “Parang-Sae (Bluebird)” in Global Rings (CHI Press, 2020) during her studies with Dr. Pamela Ruiter-Feenstra.

A winner of the North Campus MLK Spirit Award for her championship of diversity, she organized a composer diversity recital with her peers with funding from the Excellence in Entrepreneurship, Career Empowerment & Leadership Enterprise Fund, and an Augmented Reality project with graduate architecture students with funding from a Sonic Scenographies Research Grant. A native of Seoul City, South Korea, she wrote U-M’s Korean-English language carillon FAQ: https://wp.me/p7VjVq-bj

Our next studio project is the student carillon recital at “Diversity & Belonging,” the 2022 meeting of the Westfield Center for Historical Keyboards (January 26-30), which will include the premiere of carillon arrangements of piano works by Navajo composer Connor Chee.

RAY McLELLAN (1958-2021): Fellow carillonneur, friend, teacher
by Sally Harwood

RAY’s lifelong love of music started at an early age, and his life as a professional musician began when he was the organist for his church in Florida during his teens. Though the organ was his first instrument, he was a well-rounded musician who enjoyed, and was knowledgeable about, many types of music from many eras. His interest in Samuel Barber’s carillon compositions, for example, led to learning about Barber’s opera and piano works. He enjoyed listening to ragtime music and playing it on the carillon. Knowledge from his early experience with church music was broadened by a career immersed in the music of religions different from his own, and he developed a deep appreciation for the music of different modes of worship.

For 36 years, Ray was the music director and organist at the parish of St. Michael the Archangel in Monroe, Michigan, and for 28 years he was the pianist at Temple Beth Emeth in Ann Arbor, Michigan. He was the accompanist for Temple Beth Emeth’s Kol Halev choir, a 70+ member choir, for services and special performances at the Temple and for its tours in Romania and Argentina, as well as performances around Michigan, including one at a Holocaust memorial in the Capitol rotunda. He was a consummate accompanist, always alert to the director’s cues, however subtle, and able to adapt to all types of situations and conditions, from less than perfect pianos to the inevitable performance mishaps.

Ray earned a B.A. in music in 1980 at Florida Southern College, and during his time there he studied for a year in Freiburg, Germany, on a full scholarship. Ray’s goal of a career in music brought him to the University of Michigan, where he learned to play the carillon while earning Master of Music and Doctor of Musical Arts in Organ Performance degrees. He furthered his studies at the Netherlands Carillon School in Amersfoort. In 1991 he became a Carillonneur Member of the GCNA. In the years that followed, he was an active carillon recitalist in North America and Europe.

In 1997, Ray was named the Michigan State University Carillonneur, with a part-time position that allowed him to continue his work at Temple Beth Emeth and St. Michael the Archangel, as well as living in Ann Arbor and playing the UM carillons regularly. At MSU, Ray played the Beaumont Tower carillon weekly and for one recital each year during MSU’s Mueller Summer Carillon Recital series. Ray’s MSU carillon activities also included teaching student carillonneurs.

Ray enjoyed teaching students of varied nationalities and levels of musical training and was committed to meeting their particular needs and interests. Student goals ranged from preparing for official proficiency recognition to simply learning enough to share their favorite music from the carillon. He assisted students not only through teaching technical carillon skills and musicianship, but also by seeking out carillon music to suit their tastes, as well as their abilities, and by arranging for performance opportunities. He encouraged students’ participation in the GCNA, arranging for joint travel to GCNA Congresses and emphasizing the benefits of GCNA examination and learning possibilities. In addition to his MSU position, Ray was a carillon performance instructor for the North American Carillon School.

As an active member of the GCNA, Ray enjoyed the camaraderie and the common interests of carillonneurs, and other lovers of the carillon, all over North America. He was a regular attendee at Congresses and was a member and chair of the Nominations Committee. He was especially dedicated to the advancement of new carillon players, serving more than one stint through many years as a GCNA Examination jurist. He meticulously studied scores in preparation for his careful assessment of candidate recordings and performances.

Ray attended several Congresses of the World Carillon Federation and maintained communications with carillonneurs in Europe. Through relationships formed during his studies in the Netherlands and WCF experiences, he expanded his knowledge of the carillon and his ability to help students entering into further carillon studies and performance.

Although music was always his primary focus, Ray was interested in many subjects and activities, and his colleagues and students included people whose primary occupations ranged widely. Ray was inquisitive and genuinely interested in learning about, for example, physics, chaos theory, topological mathematics, copyright law, and social issues. On a less intellectual (though no less important!) level, Ray was very fond of cats—a problem early in life, with a severely allergic father, but a joy later when he had his own home, with cats. He was understanding about students sometimes bringing dogs to Beaumont Tower and was affectionate toward the ones he encountered there.

Ray valued opportunities to share his passion for music with others, such as are provided by regular carillon recitals and participation in special events and

I met Sergey at the first carillon festival of the Soviet Union in Klaipeda, Lithuania, in 1988 and learned to value him as a colleague and friend who regularly took part in and lectured at Russian bell festivals and seminars. He produced a number of records and CDs, including those about the bells of the Rostov Veliky kremlin, the Pskov-Pechery Monastery, and those in the Feodorovsky Cathedral in Saint Petersburg.

From 2010 to 2015, he organized an annual campanological seminar in Saint Petersburg with lectures, reviews of the latest Russian and foreign campanological publications, and excursions to Archangelsk, Helsinki, Moscow, Novosibirsk and Veliky Novgorod. Starting in 2015, he helped Natalia Karovskaya, the director of the Rostov Kremlin State Museum, to organize the roundtable lectures which took place until 2019 as part of the kremlin’s annual summer festival of Medieval Arts. He was also a member of the commission that oversaw the 63-ton set of 17th century bells in the kremlin’s bell tower.

In 2019, he helped to edit a volume of articles entitled Museums and Campanology to commemorate the fifteenth anniversary of the annual Crystal Bell Ringing Festival held in Kargopol during the Russian Epiphany in January. In 2020, the Rostov roundtable and summer festival were cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic, but, in October, Starostenkov managed to organize a campanological seminar in honor of the 60th birthday of his esteemed Saint Petersburg colleague Alexander Nikanorov. Sadly, it was to be his last.

He was a passionate collector of postcards depicting bells and bell towers and was very happy to receive the beautiful ones that many members of the GCNA sent me to give him.
